Scripture: Luke 10: 27

God's Great Heart By: Rev. Billy Graham

Divine love, like a reflected sunbeam, shines down before it radiates out. Unless our hearts are conditioned by the Holy Spirit to receive and reflect the warmth of God's compassion, we cannot love others as we ought.

Jesus wept tears of compassion at the graveside of a friend. He mourned over Jerusalem because its people had lost their sensitivity to God and His Word. His great heart was always sensitive to the needs of others. When challenged to state the most important commandment, He replied, "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart....(and) your neighbor as yourself" (Matt. 22: 37, 39)

Jesus' love was more than human compassion, however, it was in the fullest sense divine love, for He was God in human flesh. This is the kind of love He calls us to have – and the kind He will give us as we seek it from Him.
